NTR's birthday celebrated at Dravidian University

Birthday celebration former Chief Minister of Andhra Pradesh Padma Shri Dr. Nandamuri Taraka Rama Rao (NTR) was celebrated with great pomp and devotion at the Dravidian University campus. The program was held at the NTR Classroom Complex named after NTR. Earlier, floral tributes were paid to the statue of NTR installed at the university. As NTR's birthday was declared a state celebration as per the orders of the Andhra Pradesh government, the university organized this event with greater pomp. At this event, Vice-Chancellor Prof.M. Doraswamy paid tribute to NTR Garu and recalled his immense services in conservation. Inspired by his vision, this institution has become a symbol of his profound thoughts in education and cultural conservation. "Sri NTR garu was not just a political leader but also a cultural icon. He was passionate about education and heritage. He laid the foundation for comprehensive student education through the establishment of institutions like Dravidian University," he said. Registrar Prof. V. Kiran Kumar said, "NTR believed in education as a source of empowerment for the common man. He took up many initiatives to provide equal opportunities, especially to rural and minority communities." Dean Academic Affairs Prof. K. Shyamala said, "NTR garu's great vision for the preservation of Dravidian culture inspired me. He strongly conveyed the greatness of knowledge by establishing this university.” "NTR garu's life is an inspiration to students and teachers. His legacy inspires us to focus on excellence, service and social responsibility," he said. The event concluded with cultural performances and a floral tribute to NTR's film. The ceremony was a reminder of his great legacy and left everyone feeling inspired. Principal Prof.S.Vijayavardhini, teaching, non-teaching staff and students participated.
